

THE WARRIOR TIMES

Carnegie Science Center

By Emma Baston

Welcome to Carnegie Science Center! Here are tons of fun activities to do, and as well as learning!

On the third floor is located the human body experience. That experience showed you the difference between a smokers lungs and normal lungs, how long your intestine is, your heartbeat, and more!

Along with noises a human body can make, and an x-ray of the human body! This was very interesting, and I really enjoyed it!

Something else that was at Carnegie Science Center was a historical submarine which was 75 years old. Along with a goose named Herald when I went there. You got to climb through each section and some rubber ducks watching you. It had a bad stench, but it was interesting and fun.

And an additional gift shop! The gift shop had cute squid hats (I got one, obviously), light up swords, mugs, shirts, skeleton of the human body, slime, and a bunch of excited kids! Honestly, I loved this field trip to Carnegie Science Center, and I recommend going sometime. Whether it had a bad stench or not, it was fun.
